Mass Action in the Ruhr Area!

Ende Gelände is a German climate justice alliance. Since 2015, we've been organising large-scale mass actions against the fossil fuel industry. Through our determined protest, we achieved the coal phase-out in Germany.

Currently social crises are escalating at all fronts and Germany, whilst re-militarizing itself, also aims to fuel the current 'global boiling' by building up to 20 new fossil gas power plants — seriously?! We say: No freaking way!

Spearheaded by Katherina Reiche (Federal Minister for Economic Affairs and Energy + corrupt gas lobbyist in personal union), the re-militarising German state is enforcing this fossil expansion with billions in subsidies - on top of hundreds of billions for its war machine. If we don't step up pressure now, the coal phase-out turns into a toxic gas lock-in, whilst the logics of war further fan the flames of a violent destruction of life.

Building new gas infrastructure is not only an expensive assault on social infrastructures but also a climate crime that further attacks the livelihood of already affected Global Majority Communities. End colonial violence! End the gifts for fossil corporations! With a powerful mass action of civil disobedience, we will stand united against the societal and fossil rollback!

For a good life beyond capitalism and (imperialist) wars. For public control of energy. 🍉 For global social and climate justice!

From our action camp in the Ruhr Area, we will shut down harmful infrastructure together and across movements. Join us!
